

Workman Memorial Listing

While this list is as complete as researches have taken it, a number of (quite usual) anomalies will be apparent - some require explanation. Some names are recorded as "Not Found"; this is due to a number of factors, the most common of which is a misspelling of the name. Several examples exist here, and corrections have been made where possible. A typical example is "McIndoo", which has subsequently been treated as "McIndoe" in order to find the right individual.

This is not the only type of "error" to record as "Not Found". Many men gave an alias or different forenames for one reason or another; others will have been promoted/demoted or transferred, thus not conforming to the information given on the memorial. In some instances, a common name may show hundreds of entries. In most of the above cases it is all but impossible to locate the correct individual. Differences – such as Rank or Battalion have been highlighted. Such differences occurred if a battalion suffered heavy casualties, when the survivors would then have been placed to make up the numbers in another unit.

The entire research for this list has been via the Commonwealth War Graves Commission (CWGC).
